colour illustrations throughout

The Easter Bunny is super busy, and everything seems to be going wrong. The hens won't let him into their coop, he doesn't have any paintbrushes or paint, and the Easter eggs are about to fall off the cart... Easter is right around the corner!

Can you help?

Little ones can get sucked in by turning the book upside down, shaking it, blowing on it, and clucking like a hen. Packed with Easter surprises, it promises a whole lot of play, fun and excitement.

- Easter is just around the corner! The first Easter activity book by this bestselling author
- Lots of Easter fun: a stressed-out bunny, hens that can't hear, a distracted Mrs Badger, and other cute animals who help make sure there are plenty of colourful eggs to find in the end
- Shake it, blow on it, put your hands on your head or cluck like a hen

A hamster, a squirrel, a flamingo, a squid, a crocodile... This playful learning book for kids aged 4+ features more than 100 animals for them to copy. And it couldn't be easier: first, follow the step-by-step guide to drawing the creature's basic shapes, then fill in the details. A circle plus an oval, for example, will turn into a little dog. The best thing about it is that working with basic geometric shapes doesn't take as much planning and precision as drawing freeform outlines. That way, your little artist will feel like they have really achieved something, and discover the joy of drawing.

- Featuring more than 100 common and uncommon animals living in all kinds of habitats: in homes and gardens, on farmyards and meadows, in the woods and in the sea
- Learn how to draw the fun and easy way, using basic geometric shapes: first, recreate the shapes using coloured pencils, pens or watercolour – then fill in the details in black pen or pencil
- Draw all your favourite animals: guinea pigs, bats, horses, whales, seals, monkeys, meerkats, parrots, lions – and many, many more
- Makes drawing and painting accessible to children whose fine motor skills are still developing – feeling they've achieved something will give them a huge boost, and help them learn to love making art

A big adventure for a little fairy! Stories of different lengths, for all occasions

Do you want to know a secret? Once in a while, when the night is clear and there's a full moon, a very special fairy is born: a teensy-weensy, light-as-a-feather insect fairy with a sparkle in her eye, glittering wings and a heart of gold. The latest arrival is dragonfly fairy Luna Libella. She and her friends have exciting adventures all day long: they help the local animals, explore the world around them, have magical parties and lots more. No matter what adventure awaits the five special fairies, one thing is certain: it's always more fun when you're not alone!

They're totally different, but always up for an adventure – fun tales for little heroes

Pacey and Stacey are best friends. They are also very different: Pacey is a wild child, while Stacey prefers things quiet and snuggly. But one day, the two guinea pigs bump right into a big adventure – and if they agree on anything, it's this: They want to see the ocean! It doesn't take long before they find out whether they'll have a calm and magical adventure, or a wild and stormy one...

- At turns wild and calm: guinea pigs Pacey and Stacey couldn't be more different, but are BFFs anyway
- Hilarious, fast-paced and heartwarming – with loveable, relatable characters
- Adventurous and lively illustrations by Sarah Garbers

Celebrating the release of a special new Coconut stamp

The stories of Coconut and his friends' exciting adventures have become true children's classics. Ingo Siegner's tales are all about friendship and bravery, and are illustrated by the author himself.

To celebrate the German Post Office's issue of a special Coconut stamp in March 2025, we are publishing a double volume with two stories in which letters play an important role:

"Coconut Travels the World"

Oskar has been abducted by nasty Murk. Luckily, the all-devouring little dragon has left behind a letter with clues to help Coconut find him. First stop: London – from where Oskar sends Coconut a second letter, to let him know they're going to Paris next. There are more letters, from Italy and as far away as China... will Coconut ever catch up with them and save his friend?

"Coconut in the Savannah"

Matilda is in South Africa on an exchange trip. When she sends Coconut and Oskar a letter saying she's planning to interview all the big animals, they are really worried. After all – lions, rhinos, buffalos and the like are pretty dangerous!

•Mysterious letters take you on a voyage around the world

Football fans assemble! The superheroes are here!

Pyro and his friends from the School for Superheroes are looking forward to the holidays. But when they're told to attend football camp at the local sports club, they're really annoyed. After all, superheroes don't do sports... or do they?

Pyro soon discovers that football gives him a chance to show off his skills, without using his superpowers. His friends, too, start having fun, and in the end, everyone agrees: Football is a beautiful game!

- Combines the two popular subjects of football and superheroes: Pyro isn't much good at being a superhero, but football makes him a star
- Large print ideal for beginners, with a glossary for the more difficult names and words
- Exciting and funny, with action-packed 4c illustrations throughout by Marek Bláha
- First book in a new series. Book 2 is out in Autumn 2025

A new case for the ghost helpers

After solving his first case, Leo expected never to be scared of ghosts again. But the vaporous female phantom that's just appeared out of nowhere is more terrifying than anything he's ever seen. Luckily, she seems harmless. In fact, she very politely asks Leo and Antonia to find her dog Rex, who is still among the living. The pair say yes right away. There's nothing creepy about living dogs, after all. But they have problems tracking it down, and not just that: Leo has overdone things, and agreed to take on a second case requiring some scary night-time work. Just as well Antonia's around – as everyone knows, chills shared are half as chilling! "Bones Are Rarely Alone" is the second book in this funnily creepy series featuring odd couple Leo and Antonia

- Original, charming and hilarious
- Wonderfully multi-layered and quirky characters

‘Champions forever!’

The Grassbridge Rebels all share one thing: They love American football! When the Condors from the neighbouring village challenge the boys to a match, the Rebels decide to prove they’re the best. But to beat the opposition they first have to show they can stick together – on and off the pitch. For example when cornerback Jimmy fails his maths test and is grounded, or when Artem is pursued by an angry store detective, or when a stinky dog chases off the Rebels’ allergy-prone coach.

- The first-ever German children’s series about American football
- A diverse cast that reflects real life, deals with differences, and shows that sport can bring kids together
- With a football glossary and a foreword by two-time Patriots player and Super Bowl winner Sebastian Vollmer

All trouble and no touchdowns

After their victory over the Condors, the Rebels are facing a fresh challenge: they want to join the under 13s league, but their allergy-prone coach has moved away and is now doing their coaching sessions online. What's worse: Artem has run off to get their mascot Stinker out of jail (a.k.a. the animal shelter), and a rainstorm threatens to flood the field. With all that chaos, how's cornerback Jimmy meant to focus on training? If the Rebels can't fix things – and quickly – they'll never be able to join the league...

Never again

16-year-old Matthias has lived next door to Friedrich Schmidt his whole life. He knew the old man well – at least, he thought he did. But after Schmidt’s death, Matthias discovers that he was a member of the SS back in the day, and stayed in touch with right-wing extremists. No one in the small town had the faintest idea about any of it.

Matthias always thought the Nazis were elsewhere, not right here in his home town. He decides to find out more, and travels to Ascq in France with best friend Philipp. There, they encounter families who suffered at the hands of Schmidt’s SS-unit – and are resolved that it must never happen again.

Inspired by a true story, "The Guilt Next Door" is a sensitively written novel about guilt, forgetting, and the threat of right-wing extremism

Arthur Otto Falkenberg is dead. His body is lying in the schoolyard, covered with a blanket so that you can't see all the blood.

The police assume it's suicide, and the headmistress asks Cassidy and her clique to look out for the other pupils, and keep their eyes and ears open. The last thing she wants is a scandal. But soon there's mounting evidence that there may be something else behind Arthur's death. How do the drugs he bought fit in with his image as a diligent pupil? And how many of the tears shed by his classmates are just crocodile tears? Cassidy decides to do her own investigating. But then the police start questioning her and her friends: It turns out that one of them was closer to the dead boy than they'd care to admit...

‘You can’t avoid the storm forever. At some point it’ll catch up with you. But together, we can face it’

Isla’s life is perfect: she’s part of London’s fashionable elite, is a popular baking influencer, and her boyfriend’s a sexy athlete. But then her relationship turns into a nightmare – and suddenly, she’s become the target not just of the tabloids but of her ex’s fans. When the insults and threats get too much, she changes her look and joins the luxury cruiser "Ocean Heart" as a kitchen hand. She’s well and truly done with love.

But she hasn’t counted on irresistible bar staff Leo, who puts the smile back on her face. Finally, she can forget the past. But on the high seas, old secrets are never far away – and Isla isn’t the only one to bring her problems on board...

- A unique setting on a cruise that takes in Europe’s stunning ports
- The highly anticipated finale in the NA trilogy about three women who find a glamorous world, true love and themselves on the high seas
- This glittering cruise liner and two lovers afraid to admit their true feelings take you on an emotional rollercoaster ride

Isabel Clivia was born in one of Germany’s loveliest river valleys in 1994. While studying German and Politics, she rediscovered her love for fiction and started writing her own. She loves nights under a starry sky, gentle indie pop and watching all kinds of sports – most of which she’ll never try out herself. Her stories feature strong heroines who bravely fight for their dreams, and for love.
